

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEW JERSEY

THE TORONTO-DOMINION BANK,

Plaintiff,

v.

PLAID INC.,

Defendant.

Civil Action No. _____

Document Electronically Filed

COMPLAINT FOR TRADEMARK COUNTERFEITING, TRADEMARK INFRINGEMENT, FALSE DESIGNATION OF ORIGIN, FALSE ADVERTISING, AND UNFAIR COMPETITION

Plaintiff The Toronto-Dominion Bank, by its undersigned attorneys, alleges as follows, upon actual knowledge with respect to its itself and its own acts, and upon information and belief as to all other matters:

THE PARTIES

1. Plaintiff The Toronto-Dominion Bank (“TD”) is a Chartered Bank, organized and existing under the laws of Canada, with its U.S. headquarters at 1701 Route 70 East, Cherry Hill, New Jersey, 08034.

2. Upon information and belief, Plaid Inc. is a Delaware corporation with its headquarters at 85 Second Street, Suite 400, San Francisco, California 94105.

NATURE OF THE ACTION

3. This is an action for trademark counterfeiting, trademark infringement, false designation of origin, false advertising, and unfair competition under the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1051, et seq. and New Jersey statutory and common law.

4. TD brings this action because Defendant Plaid Inc. has created a user interface (“UI”) for financial services applications that uses TD’s TD and TD BANK trademarks, logo, and green color scheme to replicate TD’s genuine login page and to dupe consumers into believing they are entering their sensitive personal and financial information in the bank’s trusted and secure platform. In reality, however, consumers are unwittingly giving their login credentials to Defendant, who takes the information, stores it on its servers, and uses it to mine consumers’ bank records for valuable data (e.g., transaction histories, loans, etc.), which Defendant monetizes by selling to third parties. Defendant’s unscrupulous practices are the subject of a separate consumer class action for invasion of privacy and other wrongs.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. This action arises under the federal Trademark Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1051, et. seq., and under New Jersey statutory and common law. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1121 and 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331, 1338(a) and (b). This Court also has diversity jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1332 because TD and Defendant reside in different states—namely New Jersey and California, respectively—and the amount in controversy exceeds $75,000 exclusive of interest and costs. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1367, this Court has supplemental jurisdiction over TD’s state law claims because those claims are substantially related to TD’s federal Lanham Act claims.

6. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendant and venue is proper in the District of New Jersey pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b) and (c) because TD is being harmed in this District; Defendant is conducting business in this District; and Defendant is using the unlawful TD mark, logo, and green color scheme in this District.

TD, ITS SERVICES, AND ITS FAMOUS TRADEMARKS

7. TD is a diversified financial services company that offers a broad spectrum of financial products and services to consumers, small businesses, and commercial clients.

8. With approximately 89,000 employees and deep community roots dating back more than 150 years, TD is one of the ten largest and best-known banks in the United States. TD offers a broad array of retail, small business, and commercial banking and other financial products and services to millions of customers through its extensive network of approximately 1,300 physical locations in the U.S. alone.

9. TD has used the name and trademark TD in the U.S.—alone and/or with other word and/or design elements, including BANK—since at least as early as September 1969 to identify its various financial services (the “TD Marks”).

10. TD has obtained a number of federal trademark registrations for its TD and TD BANK marks (among others) for a variety of financial and computer/software goods and services, including:

These registrations are all incontestable. Printouts of the registrations, taken from the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office's online database, are attached as Exhibit A.

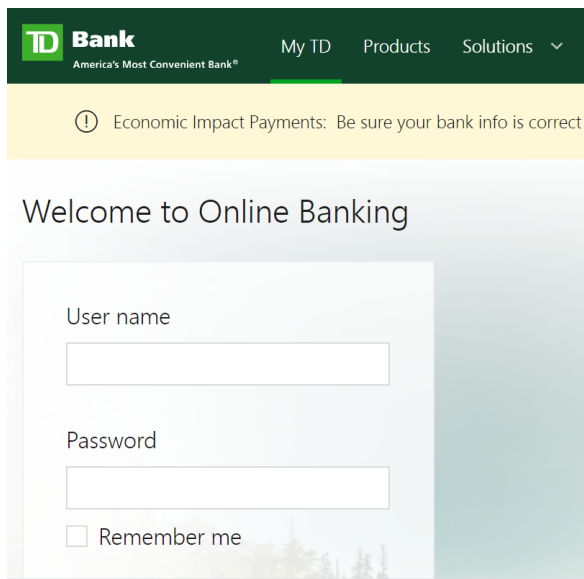

11. In addition to the TD Marks, consumers identify TD and its services by the color green, which has been TD's corporate color for decades and has been continuously and prominently used with, in, and throughout TD's marks, website, advertisements, promotions, branches, and app (see examples below).

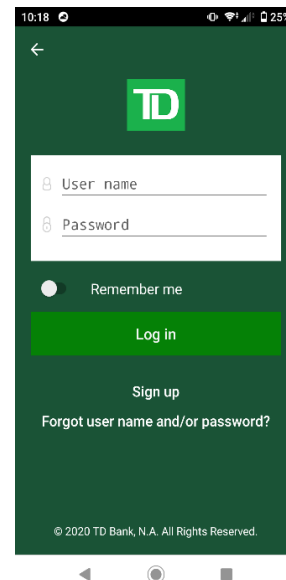

12. TD customers can access their accounts online via TD's website and mobile app. There, consumers can view and manage their accounts, deposit checks, pay bills, transfer and send money, and more.

13. When consumers access their TD accounts online, they are presented with a login screen with the TD name, mark, and logo—presented in green—where they enter their name and password, i.e.:

Website Login Screen

App Login Screen

14. TD uses multiple industry-accepted security practices, including firewalls, encryption, and multilayered authentication controls, to safeguard its customers' privacy and the security of their financial information entered online and through TD's mobile apps. Day in and day out, consumers trust and rely on these and other measures to protect their identities, hard-earned money, and sensitive and valuable financial information.

15. For years, TD has extensively advertised, marketed, and promoted its TD-branded services through a variety of high profile national and local media, including television, radio, Internet, direct mail, and print advertisements. In just the last two years alone, TD spent around 30 million annually on certain advertising activities.

16. TD has also promoted itself, its marks, and its services through various high-profile sponsorships of athletics, arts and entertainment, community events, and more, including the Boston Bruins professional NHL team, Boston Celtics professional NBA team, Somerset Patriots minor league baseball team, Greenville Drive minor league baseball team, Mayor's Cup pro cycling race, U.S. Olympic Biathlon teams, Kimmel Center, TD James Moody Jazz Festival, TD Stage at the Peace Center, annual TD Five Boro Bike Tour in New York, and annual TD Beach to Beacon 10K.

17. TD owns the naming rights to multiple sports and entertainment venues, including New Jersey's TD BANK BALLPARK, Boston's TD GARDEN, Florida's TD BALLPARK, and the College of Charleston's TD ARENA (depicted below):

18. As a result of its tremendous success, TD has received extensive media coverage, including in widely circulated media, such as Businessweek, Forbes, Investor's Business Daily, Business Insider, Wall Street Journal, American Banker, Huffington Post, Washington Post, BuzzFeed, CNN, CNBC, New York Times, PBS, Fox News, and *Yahoo! DEFENDANT AND ITS WRONGFUL ACTS

21. Defendant, a financial technology ("fintech") company, offers a financial technology infrastructure product, consisting of software and a UI that connects third-party applications ("apps") to consumers' bank accounts, without ever having the consumers login to the accounts.

22. Defendant's Plaid product is used in several popular payment and investment apps, including Venmo, Coinbase, Square's Cash App, and Stripe, each of which allows consumers to send and receive money from their TD and other financial accounts.

23. When connecting a third-party app to consumers' bank accounts, Defendant's Plaid product uses an authentication process that differs from, and bypasses, the customary authentication process.

24. Typically, when consumers access their bank accounts via a third-party webpage or app, this is done via an "OAuth" process that redirects the consumers from the original third-party webpage or app directly to their bank's own webpage or app. Once there, consumers enter their login credentials and are then redirected back to the original third-party webpage or app.

Behind the scenes, the bank returns a “token” that allows the original webpage or app to access the consumer’s bank identification as necessary and authorized by the consumer, but without giving the third-party webpage or app provider access to the consumer’s login information.

25. Instead of redirecting consumers from the third-party app to their bank’s website or app, the Plaid product’s authentication sidesteps the “OAuth” process by creating “dummy” screens that replicate the banks’ login pages, giving consumers the impression that they have been transported to their bank’s website or app and are logging into their account. In reality, consumers are giving their credentials to Defendant, who then uses the information to log into the banks’ systems while the consumer remains in the third-party app.

26. For example, a consumer using Venmo who wants to connect to their TD account is presented with a “selection” screen that displays the TD Marks among other bank names and logos, e.g.:

Defendant’s Plaid UI Selection Screen on Venmo

27. Once a consumer using Venmo selects TD BANK, the consumer is presented with a “credential” screen, which purposefully imitates the look and feel of TD’s login page and prompts consumers to enter their user name and password:

Defendant’s Plaid UI Credential Screen on Venmo

28. After receiving the consumer’s login credentials, the Plaid UI presents a “loading” screen, which also uses TD’s name, mark, logo, and green color scheme to make users believe they are interacting directly with the bank’s real webpage or app:

Defendant’s Plaid UI Loading Screen on Venmo

29. On information and belief, the Plaid UI takes consumers through these or similar steps and presents consumers with screens using TD's name, mark, logo, and green color scheme on all third-party apps that use Defendant's Plaid product.

30. After taking consumers' login credentials, Defendant sends the information to its servers, where it is kept and used to collect data from all accessible accounts (e.g., checking, savings, and credit card)—not just the specific account a customer may have intended to connect to the third-party app.

31. Defendant tracks “typically 24 months of transaction data, including geolocation, merchant, and category information,” which it stores and analyzes using machine learning. (See <https://plaid.com/products/transactions/>.) This valuable personal financial information is then offered and sold to third-party apps. (See <https://plaid.com/pricing/>.)

32. According to an individual identified as a former Plaid programmer, Defendant “develop[ed] methodologies for bypassing the anti-scraping measures on several banking websites” and “ignore[ed] banks’ refusals” to grant Defendant access to bank customers’ information. (See <https://news.ycombinator.com/item?id=17692291>.)

33. Defendant has boasted that “[o]ver a quarter of people with US bank accounts” and “tens of millions of users” have connected financial accounts using Plaid. (See <https://plaid.com/overview-privacy/>; <https://plaid.com/documents/plaid-for-financial-institutions.pdf>.)

34. Defendant has conceded that it is able to obtain consumers’ sensitive financial information by using TD’s and other banks’ “branding elements” because they give “end-users [] a greater sense of security and familiarity when they recognize their institution’s look-and-feel.” (See <https://blog.plaid.com/improved-search/>.)

35. Defendant has also touted that the “native experience” of consumers entering login credentials for “personal financial data without ever leaving the original app” “increase[es] user conversion.” (See <https://fin.plaid.com/articles/demystifying-screenless-exchange/>.)

36. On April 17, 2020, TD sent a letter to Defendant accusing Defendant of trademark infringement and unfair competition, and demanding that Defendant promptly cease its use of TD’s marks and branding.

37. On May 1, 2020, Defendant responded to TD denying liability and refusing to stop using TD’s name, mark, logo, and green color scheme.

38. On May 4, 2020, a consumer class action lawsuit was filed against Defendant, Cottle v. Plaid Inc., No. 3:20-cv-03056 (N.D. Cal. filed May 4, 2020), alleging that Defendant deceptively and fraudulently collects, stores, aggregates, and monetizes consumers’ sensitive financial credentials and transactions in violation of consumers’ privacy, the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act, and other laws.

INJURY TO TD AND THE PUBLIC

39. Defendant’s use of TD’s name, mark, and green color scheme to mimic TD’s genuine login pages is likely to confuse and deceive people into believing that they have been forwarded to TD’s website or app and that they are providing their login credentials to TD—not to Defendant or anyone else.

40. Defendant’s unauthorized use of TD’s name, mark, and green color scheme is likely to cause confusion, mistake, and deception as to the source or origin of Defendant, its business, and/or its commercial activities with TD.

41. Defendant’s unauthorized use of TD’s name, mark, and green color scheme has damaged and irreparably injured and, if permitted to continue, will further damage and irreparably injure TD, TD's name and marks, TD's reputation and goodwill, and the public's interest in being free from confusion, mistake, and deception.

42. Defendant intentionally used TD's name, mark, and green color scheme to trick people into believing that they were at TD's site or app in order to obtain their valuable and private financial information. As a result, Defendant acted knowingly, willfully, in reckless disregard of TD's rights, and in bad faith.

43. TD and the public have no adequate remedy at law.
